

I am firmly against removing the regulations on broadband service. The regulations have made the market a fairer place and the consequences of the giant telecom companies having free reign concerns me greatly. They have a natural monopoly which requires government regulation to protect individuals.